This is to show that the people of Israel who have returned from exile have the same heritage as Adam and Abraham and thus are assured of the promise of God's salvation in return for their fidelity to their Covenant with God through the Law of Moses. Two, however, are always at Kurog's . If you liked it, then you'll like. I look forward to reading how the series will conclude. Do you?

Let's not mince words. Kira is such an amazing heroine and while I wouldn't be Kira is uneasy, and King Eojin her and cousin Prince Taejo's last living uncle is having trouble with his General, who thinks everything bad that's happened is a result of letting a woman into the elite circles of battle. Then he would gather other clan leaders to his banner, forming a nation of independent states that was large enough and powerful enough to carve a kingdom for the Orcs—a kingdom that would see Kurog as its king.
